We warmly invite you to Join the CME cum Workshop on HPV and Sexually Transmitted Infections, where eminent National Faculty will share their expertise on some of the most important issues in clinical practice today.

By participating, you will gain valuable insights on prevention, diagnosis, and treatment, explore new strategies including vaccines and antimicrobial resistance, and take part in interactive discussions that will strengthen your practical skills. This workshop will help you stay updated with the latest developments, enhance your approach to patient care, and contribute meaningfully to public health.

E-POSTER PRESENTATION AT CME CUM WORKSHOP ON HPV & STIS.

The E-poster session invites contributions across a wide spectrum of topics including HPV and its related precancerous lesions, diagnostic innovations, antimicrobial resistance in STIs, HIV and STI co-management, vaccine strategies, public health interventions, behavioral and social perspectives, and policy approaches toward prevention and elimination. Participants are encouraged to present original research, case reports, innovative models of care, or community-based initiatives that highlight both clinical and public health dimensions.
